

Dot Vile, 2017

corner

A child sits
hugging bent legs
backbone aligned
embraced and excluded

I scanned the wall
with my palm
in a pitch black room
still recognized

I tucked myself
into a still-made bed
holding mouthfuls
of crumbs from His body and a candy

I found on the floor
flat and impressed
by someones shoe